THE RE are thousands of Young Men, as well as Minnie Agep and Old Men, who are suffering to some extent from the above diseases. Many, perhaps, are not aware of their true condition, or when assistance is really needed. tance is really needed.
For the benefit of such, we herewith give a few of For the benefit of such, we herewith give a few of the most common symptoms, viz: Worka so of the Back and Limbe, Pain in the Head and Side, dimness of Sight, Dats and Webs before the Eyes, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyeppsia, Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression in Spirits, Arereion to Society, Self-Distrast, Timidity, etc. For each and all of the above symptoms these remedies will be found a "Sovereign Balm."

These remedies embrace three prescriptions: A box of Postels, a box of Aereons Tonic Pells, and a box of Vivide Tonic Pills, all of which have important offices to perorm, and should be used together in every case. Their superiority over other modes of treatment may be briefl, stated as follows, viz:

They immediately arrest necturnal and diural emissions.

It They remove local weakness, causing the organs to assume their natural tone and vigor.

It Place strengthen the constitution by overcoming nervous debitity and general weakness.

They enlive in the spirits, which are neually depressed, by expelling all exciting causes from the system. By their invigorating properties they restore the patient to his natural boulth and vigor of man-

Messrs, J. N. Harris & Co.:
Gentlemen :—The confidence I have in Perry Davis'
Pain Killer as a remedy for Colds. Coughs, Burns Sprains, and Rheumntism, for the cure of which have successfully used it, induces me to cheerfully recommend its virtues to others.
A few months upon I had recourse to it to destroy a felon; although I had never heard of its being nased for that purpose; but having suffered intensely from a former one, and having no other remeds at land, I applied the Pain Killer freely for shout fifteen numetes at evening, and repented the appliea tion very briefly the uext morning, which entirely destroyed the telon, and increased my confidence in the utility of the remedy.

We have not only abstained from interference with a blockade which was paralyzing our mannfacturing industry, but we have ever carried our recognition of this blockade to the utmost limits of indulgence. Strictly speaking, the blockade has never been legally valid, and a rigorous interpretation of internntional law would have justified us in trenting it as ineffectual. We allowed it, however, to operate as if had been actually enforced, and we abstained from any attempt to get at the cotton we needed.

ENGLAND'S IMPUDENCE .-- As will he seen by our dispatches this morning, passengers at Halifax, who arrived on the Asia, say that by our dispatches this morning, passengers at Halifnx, who arrived on the Asia, say that England has other claims besides the Trent affair, and that she will take up as her own, or paramount thereto, the blocking up of Charleston harbor. Perhaps she is not satisfied—nobody expected she would be—nobody was foolish enough to think it. But now, that we have put ourselves on the right side of the law, the next complaint and demand will issue from Washington. There is no doubt in the world—there can be none—that we shall have a heavy job on hand. But the year, which heavy job on hand. But the year, which ushers in so brightly, will close over the grave of English monarchy, if she should madly push us into a fight .- Lon. Dem.

[From the London Post (government organ) Dec. 7.] Jeff. Davis' Message in England --- What Her Cabinet and Politicians think of and Hepe frem the Paper.

The principal intelligence conveyed by the Edinburg from America consists in the sage of the President of the Southern confederation; and we are glad to notice the friendly tone in which it treats of the relations of the South with this country, while we are embarked in a critical negotiation with the North; and while we are also about to enter upon our intervention in Mexico, a country bordering upon the Southern States. This is, in fact, the only satisfactory and significant information that the present American packets has brought. The "Trent question" mains in statu quo. The opinion of the law officers of the Washington Cabinet, which is now repeated, had reached as by the Persia Monday last, but the popular excitement which the question had provoked appears to linve in some measure cooled down. moment, therefore, Southern politics arrest our chief attention. The message of President Davis to the Southern Congress is, in our judgment, the more satisfactory for the firm and determined attitude in which it cononts the Unionist party and the Cabinet of Washington, for if we concede the conquest of the South be next to impossible, it is by the exhibition of Southern strength rather than of Southern weakness that peace is to be redent Davis recounts that throughout seven months of hostilities the confederates have almost uniformly held their own, and that in several instances they have thrown their opponents into a defensive attitude.

President Davis is therefore fully entitled to the bold ground which he assumes when he declares that "the South will be content to live at peace with the North, but that the separation is final." He adds that the South will accept of no compromise. He is now, perhaps for the first time, in a position to make use of this language. Indeed, one is led to ask, after the trial und exhaustion of so many designs, and the expenditura of so much money on the part of the North, what is yet to introduce decisive features into the campaign? The federals have enjoyed immense advantages in point of men and money, and also (as we showed yesterday) in drawing warlike supplies from this country, through their superior command of the sea. Presi dent Davis will no doubt derive fresh confidence when he reads the two royal proclimiations which, in the latter respect, have now placed the North and South on a footing of quality. But there has been scarcely a sir gle State overrun by the Northern army during the whole course of the campaign, and it much questioned whether the naval ditions of the federal government to Hatteras and Port Royal have done much more than slightly to reduce the privateering activity of the South. The assertion of the Southern President must, therefore, be admitted to be substantially true, that "the reconstruction of the Union, which the federals seek to effect by force of arms, has become more and more palpably impossible." He maintains, also, that the causes which brought about the separation not only remain in full force but have been strengthened since the civil war began. With a view of observing strict neutrality between the contending States, we have carefully refrained from officially recognizing the South; but the time has certainty arrived at which we cease altogether to believe in the possible reunian of the States, and at which we must, at all events recognize the independent confederation of the South as an actual fact.

President Davis speaks with just indigna-Courts of France and England; and there is ly read by the British public; everything that a passage in this part of his message which tends to show the temper of the Americans, or throws a probable light on the distinctive to give a clue to the intentions of their govmission on which Mr. Slidell and Mr. Mason ernment, will be minutely investigated were sent to Europe. He remarks, with discussed. Unhappily, the disputches we pubsome evident pride, that the Confederate lish to-day give little information on this States have been content to fight their own point. So far as we are able to judge from battle, and have solicited no assistance from them, the Americans seem to be foreign Powers. But he declares that they of the momentous controversy which they have have a right to bring before Europe the question of the application of the existing blockades vails, but we cannot but think that, being so of their own ports to the acknowledged princi-ple of international law, that blockades, if they similar cases, they will in a few days he are to be respected by third Powers, must be taken it for granted that everything is right. effective. He is about to represent to the and that after a little grumbling England will! European governments, necordingly, the total inefficiency of these blockades, and to put but in what they announce their intention of the assertion upon evidence. It is a fair in- doing. ference that this was one of the questions upon which Messrs. Slidell and Muson were sent to Europe. But there is another statement in our present American intelligence which threatens to put the blockade question in a light altogether new. It is announced that twenty-five vessels have set sail, appnrently from New York, heavily loaded with stones, with the view of their being sunk at the month of a Southern harbor. Now, in all probability, ingress or egress would be as difficult at a Southern port, with five-and-twenty sunken vessels in front of the harbor, as it was at Schastopol, where the Russians sunk several of their ships with the view of preventing the entrance of English and French vessels of war. But if the Federal Government desire by this expedient to relieve their own ships by thus blocking up Southern ports, they must be perfectly awnre that there sat once an end of the blockade in every is at once an end of the blockade in every instance in which their new plan is to apply press generally that the British people are nt sunker neverly will not constitute a blockade all thankful to France for her sympathy. Sunken vessels will not constitute a blockade, This is not a very gracious feeling, et "effective' as they may; and wherever the Federal Government shall thus substitute sunken vessels for its ships-of-war. then the blockade is at once terminated by the consent of all nations.

We draw attention to the rational and friendly manner in which the Southern President niludes to the attitude maintained hither-layer been so in India, had not the British to towards America by this country, because government perceptorily objected; it is so in we regard our relations with the Sonthern States as henceforward of very considerable peror designs it to be so in case of war with importance. We must look upon this intervention as one that may he in operation during a considerable period of time; and while the Northern government is too distant to admit of its attitude entering materially into this question, the Southern confederation, on the other hand, stretches for a great distance along the frontier of Mexico, so as to against us, though accompanied with profesrender its friendly disposition to the authors of the intervention of no slight consequence The Northern government has invariably railed at our neutrality; but the Southern, with statesmanship and moderation, has recognized in it all that we could do for either party, and whetherwith a view to our transactions in Mexico, or to our relations with the Cabinet of Washington, the friendly for- The financial crisis through which M. But the Confederate States tha practice of he older federation has not been adopted, so that President Davis has the start of his rival by a few days, and is able to make an impresby a bold and confident manifesto while President Lincoln is still engaged on his own lengthy disquisition. The summary given of he Southern message shows it to be a State paper of great interest and importance. Its nutbor has always been recognized, even by nis enemies, as one of the most vigorous and astute politicians that America has produced, and he is especially remarkable for literary skill n compositions of this kind. We may expect, therefore, that the dignity of the South will not suffer from the pen of its first President The message of n few months since was an able apology for secession, and a vigorous exhortation to unity and courage. The present message seems to be a congrutulation on victories nehieved, and an announcement that the untional independence may be considered secure. And certainly a less accomplished writer than President Davis might become eloquent with the history of the past year as

But the part of the message which at this moment is especially interesting, is that which refers to the seizure of the Confederate Commissioners and the relations between the two republics and the great Powers of Europe. It pluin that Mr. Davis discerns the eloud which is forming on this side of the Atlantic. "The claim of the United States to seize them in the streets of London," says President Davis, "would have been us well founded as the seizure on board the Trent." As far as we learn by telegraph, he does not presume to give us advice, or to say that we are bound to lemand reparation, but we cannot help thinking that the probability of a rupture between England and the Northinspires the President to use a high tone with respect to foreign as sistance. "The Confederates," says Mr. Davis, "ask no aid from foreign powers." just the language which a new State must hold if it wishes to give its neighbors nn excuse for recognizing its independence only consideration in such a case is whether the community which demands to be recognized has the force and consistency which entitle it to recognition. If it be de facto a nntion, if it prove that it can maintain its own independence, then other governments are ustified in communicating with it diplomatieally, and treating it as a member of the family of nations. But if it calls on the world to elp,it, it does by this very act take away the right of neutral powers to treat it as an equal. It proclaims that the State against which it has revolted still has the power to conquer it, and consequently it is the duty of neutrals to consider it merely as a province in a state of insurrection. The Attitude of France. One of the most embarrassing considernions for the British government at the present moment is the attitude of France with reference to the impending difficulties between it and our own Administration. The Einperor is an inscrutable mystery to the English; and as they are not able to understand him, they mistrust him. Hence, if one of the Paris journals (usually supposed to be under his direction) espouses the cause of England and insists upon the vindication of her "outraged" honor, the question is immediately asked, "What business is it of La Patrie? Why should M. de la Gueronniere be so nuxious about our And suspicion is at once aroused as honor?'' to the intentions of the journalist. not perceive from the tonc of the English but it is not entirely unjustifiable. sum up the arguments of the English press on this point as follows: The policy of the Emperor is co-operation, under no matter what pretext, so that he may have a controlling voice in the business. The result, however, of such a policy, af-

The hostility of some of their papers, and the cvident uncertainty in tho tone of others, betray the fact that intentions not altogether friendly to us exist in an influential quarter Co-operation with England, no mutter what sions of profound regret. four cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which can not be found in nny other publication. It is an established rule of the publishers to insert none but original engravings, and those of the first class in the art, drawn and engraved by experienced persone under their own supervision.

TO THE INVENTOR.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Protests issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Orent Britain, France, and Germany; thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We shall continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals of whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS. AND FARMERS.

AND FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in thes ience of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interests of the architect and carponter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found published in the Scientific American, which information they cannot possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which planters and farners are interested will he found discussed in the Scientific American, most of the improvements in agricultural implements heing illustrated in its columns.

REJUVENATING ELIXIR!! Prepared on the strictest Pharmaccutient principle by one of the ablest Chemists of the age.

hy one of the ablest Chemists of the age.

This is altegether a new meticine, the result of modern discoveries in the vegetable kiagdom, being an entirely new and abstract method of cure, irrespective of all the old and worm-out systems published by accountished quacks to the suffering. Dr. Wright, well knowing the deception practised upon the unimitated, felt it his duty at once to love this Elixir tested by the whole Medical Frieulty, who, without even one dissenting voice, have given in their adherence to its perfect and analyticled control over the whole physical man when his frame has been reduced, and when all other medicines known to the Pharmacopoein have been tried in vain. Long thought, years of patient investigation, and a nil desperandium determination, have crowned the Doctor's efforts, and he now offers the Elixir to suffering humanity as the only thing that can cure the following diseases—namely: GENERAL DEBILITY.

As a Stimulant, It is quite different from alcoholic preparations. It is not sobject to reactions in any shape; it continues to exert its influence, gradually and efficiently, as long as the least necessity exists for its presence.

As a Female Medicine, It is equally powerful and effective, and restores the equilibrium shoner and safer than all the other medicines which for years have fluoded the narket, and which are only inturious, in place of assisting or renovating the constitution; for a very good reason too, that they are only made from the effusions of minds ignorant of the Medical profession altogether.

No Minerals! Dr. Wright thinks it well to stake his professional character on the fact, that no minerals whatever form the least component parts of the ingredients in liss Rejuvennting Elixir—well knowing what ruin has been entailed on the community by opium and mercurs.
